Lippincott, Elizabeth Roberts. Descendants of Asa R. and Hannah D. Lippincott. 1960.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The compiler has gathered material from two major genealogical sources: the Lippincott Family Tree published by Charles Lippincott of Cinnaminson in 1880 and for the Thorne Family the records of T. Chalkley Matlack, the result of diligent research during the late 1800's into the early 1900's.

Data relating to later generations has been collected directly from members of the immediate families. Their cooperative response has encouraged the compiler to proceed with the project of collating the data in a form that may be available to the numerous descendants.

THORNE ANCESTRY

William Thorn, of Dorsetshire, England, was made freeman at Lynn, Massachusetts, in 1638 and had "thirty and ten" acres of land apportioned to him there. In 1645 he was in Flushing, Long Island, and in 1657 was one of the proprietors of Jamaica, Long Island. He and his wife Sarah had five children.

Their son, <sup>or father</sup> Joseph Thorn (1647-1727), married Mary Bowne, daughter of John and Hannah Field Bowne of Flushing. They had twelve children. Two sons married sisters and moved to New Jersey, Thomas settling on the south branch of Pennsauken Creek near the Colestown Cemetery. Thomas Thorn (1692/3-1748) married in 1727 Letitia Hinchman, daughter of John and Sarah Harrison Hinchman, and lived first in the "hip-roofed house" on the hillside to the south of their later home. In 1742 they built a substantial brick house on the "plantation which consisted of 200 and odd acres." At his death Letitia carried on the farm with the aid of slaves for eleven years.

The only son of Thomas and Letitia, Thomas Thorn (1739-1809) married in 1759 Abigail Burrough (1738-1822), daughter of Samuel and Ann Burrough, and took charge of the homestead. Their children numbered nine.

The farm came into the possession of their son, William Thorne (1778-1843), through his purchase of his brothers' and sisters' shares. He married October 28, 1813, Hannah Dudley (1778-1865), daughter of Joshua and Rachel Roberts Dudley.

Their only child, Hannah Dudley Thorne (1821-1901), heired the property a year after her marriage November 17, 1842, to Asa Roberts Lippincott (1820-1893), son of Levi and Hannah Roberts Lippincott. Her mother and maiden aunt, Mary Thorne, known as "Aunt Polly," continued to live in the homestead until the time of their deaths.

The farm, known as "Thornedale Farm," remained in the family until it was sold in 1922 to the neighboring farmer, J. Heulings Coles. Now in 1960 its fields are covered with dwellings, the old homestead had been demolished during the previous year, and the development is known as Cherry Valley and Peppermill Farms.

It is interesting to note that the original King's Highway from Salem to Burlington crossed the farm. From Haddonfield to Moorestown it passed in front of the old St. Mary's Church in the Colestown Cemetery (whose site is indicated by a marker), down the hill across the garden to the east of the farmhouse, on down past the Matlack sawmill; it crossed by bridge the southern branch of the Pennsauken Creek, up to the old blacksmith shop still standing on the Lindley Gardiner farm, on across the present Route 73, in front of the old Matlack homestead occupied by "Libby" Matlack Haines and family to the Chester Brick Schoolhouse (destroyed by fire), and on across the northern branch of the Pennsauken Creek near the present bridge on the Lenola Road.

LIPPINCOTT LINEAGE

Richard Lippincott with his wife Abigail removed from Devonshire, England, in 1639 and settled at Boston, New England. Having been excommunicated from the "Church" at Boston for non-conformity in 1651, he returned with his family to England, and resided at Plymouth, Devon. He early thereafter became a member of the Society of Friends and "in consequence endured much persecution for the testimony of a good Conscience." In 1663 he returned to New England and lived for several years in Rhode Island, and finally in 1669 established himself and family at Shrewsbury, Monmouth County, New Jersey, where he died in 1683. He was the largest proprietor among the Patentees of the New Colony. His widow Abigail died in 1697 leaving a considerable estate.

The name, Lippincott, is of Saxon origin. From its first form, Lovecote, it has come down to our times through various spellings: Loughwyngcote, Lyvenscott, Luffingcott, Luppingcott.

Richard and Abigail Lippincott had eight children, namely, Remembrance, John, Abigail (died in infancy), Restore, Freedom, Increase (married Samuel Dennis), Jacob (his children died young), Preserved (died in childhood). Note that the children's names reflect experiences in the parents' lives. The sons, Remembrance and John, remained in the vicinity of Shrewsbury while their brothers, Restore and Freedom, settled in Burlington County.

Freedom Lippincott (1650-1697) purchased land on the Rancocas Creek, near Bridgeboro; one record notes 288 acres. He is described as a tanner; he appears also to have been a "smith" as we find that in the summer of 1697 while shoeing a horse he was killed by lightning.

Thomas Lippincott, eldest son of Freedom, purchased in 1708 a tract of 1,034 acres, extending from Pennsauken Creek to Swedes Run, joining the "No-se-ne-min-si-on" tract reserved to the Indians, from which the word Cinnaminson is derived. The village of Westfield (now Cinnaminson) was situated on the border of the Lippincott tract. The name, Westfield, was originally given to the meeting house which was built in Thomas Lippincott's western field. In 1711 Thomas married Mary Haines, daughter of John and Esther Borton Haines.

To follow the line -

Thomas' and Mary's son, Isaac Lippincott, married Hannah Engle.

Their son, Samuel Lippincott, married Priscilla Bryant.

The eighth of their twelve children, Levi Lippincott, married Hannah Roberts, daughter of Samuel and Hannah Stiles Roberts. There were eight children as follows:

1. David Lippincott

m. Martha Matlack

2. Aaron Lippincott

m. 1. Lydia Conrow

2. Priscilla Lippincott ....

- 4
3. Samuel Lippincott died young
  4. Asa Roberts Lippincott                      m. Hannah Dudley Thorne
  5. Levi Lippincott                                m. Mary Ann Buzby
  6. Mary R. Lippincott                           m. Silas Walton
  7. Hannah Lippincott                           m. Joseph J. Hilton
  8. Sarah Lippincott died young

In tracing the children of Asa R. and Hannah D. Lippincott, note has been made of where they resided and of their business interests.

Their descendants have very generally remained in Burlington and Camden Counties of New Jersey. In instances where a family has settled elsewhere, note is made thereof.

"Hannah D.," as she was generally known, attended the Chester Brick School and also a boarding school, kept by Lydia Sharp in Mount Holly.

A few years after their marriage, Thorndale farmhouse was extensively altered to about twice its former size, much better suited to the growing family. Three months after the youngest of the six daughters was born, the eldest was married and during the next three years there were two more weddings. When the older son was married, the parents and the younger children moved to Moorestown at 219 East Main Street.

"Hannah D." showed an exceptional interest in her relatives through visits and correspondence, keeping the bonds so closely with her Indiana cousins that later generations have interchanged visits. During the eight years that she survived her husband, she was a welcome visitor in the families of her children. The compiler has happy memories of her annual visit to Thorndale for the month of August.

son of Reuben and Hannah Roberts

Edward and Hannah Roberts spent their married life in Camden. Their last residence at Fourth and Penn Streets houses the faculty offices of the South Jersey branch of Rutgers University. Edward Roberts had a livery stable in Camden, but his main business interest was in handling produce from farmers and from the South. He was a prominent commission merchant in Philadelphia and the house on Dock Street was ably continued by his grandson, J. Earle Roberts, until 1957. Dock Street was abandoned in 1959 as the produce center of the city and the Food Distribution Center was opened just south of the Walt Whitman Bridge in South Philadelphia. Earle Roberts is the general manager of the new organization.

Martha Moore Roberts
b. 1-27-1855; d. 3-13-1906
daughter of Joseph Evens and Elizabeth Horner Coles Roberts

William T. and Martha Lippincott lived on the Thornedale homestead. The farm was well adapted for general farming, in an era entirely without mechanization! The compiler, their only daughter, had the privilege of enjoying Thornedale until her thirty-fifth year. The meadow that followed the Pennsauken Creek as it wound the length of the farm was a precious playground for her and her brother. In an especially varied growth of vegetation, they acquired a basic knowledge of bird life which later developed into an avid interest in ornithology!

Albert and "Ettie" Roberts lived on the Roberts homestead on Union Hill Road, a farm very familiar to birdwatchers who haunt the "Hartford Swamp." The family continued to live at this home until Albert Roberts married a second time, in 1912, and moved to a new residence on Marne Highway. The daughters, after living in Philadelphia a number of years, now live in a small house on the same property.
